

My name is Eric Robinson. You can see my picture in the upper-right corner, taken when I began my fight against Leukemia in the fall of '05.

Katy, my wife, is pictured at the bottom after completing her first marathon. During that event, Team in Training raised several million dollars for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society to continue fighting blood cancers.

However, the fact remains: without the LLS, I would have died sometime in early-2006, as they funded groundbreaking research that keeps me alive. As Katy raises more money for research (while I cheer from the sidelines), I am trying to get as much support as possible. The link below goes directly to the Team in Training donation site, which has raised many millions to find cures and treatments for blood cancers. There are no gimmicks, and all donations from this point on go DIRECTLY to the LLS.

It doesn't take a few gigantic donations, but rather the generosity of many - giving even a dollar at a time - to defeat one of the deadliest forms of cancer. I owe my life to this organization, and so do the generations of patients after me.

Please Donate, even if it is a few dollars:
<http://www.active.com/donate/tntgmo/teamkaty>

